A NEW WAVE

TEXT KIMITSU YANG

Some of us just can't get enough of seaside living. What's there not to like? The soft powdery sand that crunches under your feet, the calming sound of waves rolling onto the coast and the glorious sun to bask in. Simply divine.

Unless you've retired to your beach home in some exotic island in the Caribbean, how often can we enjoy the sunny beach life every day? Well, luxurious resort residences have sprung up all around the world. And they are not just offering expansive ocean views or sea breezes. They come with private beach access — complete with a beach clubhouse.

Take Wyndham's hotel-like Jade Condo Resort Residences & Beach Club in Costa Rica for example. It's set against a stunning backdrop of a national park and residents can enjoy the refined beach as well as the exclusive beach club. Over in Honduras, the Pristine Bay Resort on the tropical island of Roatan is another prime example.

And now, you can enjoy similar luxurious and exclusive living right here. Why wait for that annual pilgrimage to your exclusive beachfront retreat or exhaust yourself travelling thousands of miles when you can own and live in one — every day? Built by high-end property developer SC Global, Seven Palms offers a truly different experience for those looking for an oceanfront property.

Unlike most other condos, this tropical resort residence doesn't just deliver its promise of living by the beach. It actually is connected to one. You'll also be one of only 41 owners on Sentosa — and Singapore, for that matter — to have your very own private beach access. Exclusivity doesn't get any better than this. 🌊
